Separation led husband to kill

TAXI driver Keith McDonald stabbed his wife to death before slashing his wrists and setting fire to the bungalow where they previously lived together.

BY JOHN GOODE

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

William Morris, coroner for North and East Cambridgeshire, said the deaths of Mr McDonald and his wife Christine was "one of the most tragic cases" he had dealt with.

The couple's bodies were discovered at their former home in New Cheveley Road, Newmarket, when Mr McDonald's mother and stepfather found the property filled with smoke

The coroner recorded a verdict of unlawful killing on Mrs McDonald, 48, and ruled that Mr McDonald, 47, "took his own life".

Mr Morris said Mrs McDonald died from stab wounds and Mr McDonald died from inhaling fire fumes.

He said that drink or drugs had not played a significant part although there was a small amount of alcohol found in Mr McDonald's blood and there was evidence of previous drug use.

The inquest into the deaths of the estranged couple, who both worked as taxi-drivers based in Newmarket, heard how they had split about a month earlier after Mr McDonald had "trashed" their home.

Mrs McDonald had moved out and was living with television installer Dane Scarlett in his flat at Lapwing Court, Mildenhall.

But she had gone to see her husband about paperwork for their taxis on the day they died, Friday, May 8.

Mr McDonald's mother Kathleen McDonald-Laffling became concerned when she could not contact him on his mobile phone and went to the bungalow with her husband, Bill Laffling.

Mr Laffling told the inquest, at Wisbech magistrates' court last Thursday, that he had earlier spoken to Mr McDonald through the door of the bungalow about four hours earlier.

"I had a feeling in my bones that something was wrong so I went down to the bungalow and asked Keith if he was all right," he said.

"He said 'Everything's all right. See you later.' I couldn't see him, but he was in the hallway. He said: 'We're sorting things out.'"

Tragic case: Keith and Christine McDonald. CP

But when he later returned with his wife and managed to open the patio door he was hit by thick smoke.

Police were called and eventually found the bodies in the bedroom. Emergency services tried to resuscitate Mr McDonald but he was later certified dead by a doctor.

Home Office pathologist Dr Nat Cary said Mrs McDonald had suffered nine stab wounds. One wound punctured a lung and another punctured her liver.

He said she had a black eye and other evidence of "blunt force trauma" to her face.

He said there was evidence that Mr McDonald had walked around the bungalow bleeding from self-inflicted wounds to his wrists and neck before starting the fire in the living room.

The inquest heard that Mr McDonald had voluntarily been admitted to a mental health unit at West Suffolk Hospital, Bury St Edmunds, on April 29 after taking an overdose of painkillers and other tablets.

The coroner read statements from friends of the couple who spoke about Mr McDonald's previous cocaine habit.

A statement by Tracey Jinks recalled how Mr McDonald had said he would kill his wife and any man she was having an affair with.

She said she spoke to Mr McDonald on his mobile phone at 2.11pm on the afternoon of the deaths.

She said he sounded "very robotic" and said he was "just with Christine".

Mr Scarlett told the inquest he drove past the bungalow twice on the afternoon they died.

But he said he did not stop because had promised Mrs McDonald he would not interfere.

Body found in burned out car sparks police investigation

POLICE cordoned off the car park at a nature reserve after the discovery of a body in a burned out car.

A member of staff at the Lackford Lakes bird reserve, between Mildenhall and Bury St Edmunds, made the gruesome discovery when they arrived last Thursday morning.

Suffolk police launched an investigation into what they described as an "unexplained" death.

The car was parked near the visitor centre at the reserve, run by the Suffolk Wildlife Trust.

Police later said the body was believed to have been a man.

The death is not being treated as suspicious but an inquest will be held at a later date.

Police have appealed for anyone with information about the incident to call Bury St Edmunds CID on (01473) 613500.

This won't hurt: former jockey Bob Champion prepares for his flu jab with practice nurse Sarah Quigley. CP

Bob supports flu jab campaign

FORMER jockey Bob Champion is supporting a campaign to encourage older people to have a flu jab.

The 1981 Grand National winner had his annual vaccination at Newmarket's Orchard House surgery.

His recovery from testicular cancer, diagnosed two years before his Grand National win on Aldaniti, was made into a film with actor John Hurt playing him.

He also suffered a heart attack six years ago putting him into one of the groups at increased risk from seasonal flu.

He said: "I've had the free seasonal flu jab for the last six years because of my heart attack, and I would certainly urge others who qualify for it to do the same. Seasonal flu is not to be underestimated.

"Back in 1979 I was told I possibly only had a few months to live and the dream that kept me going through the long months of chemotherapy was that one day I might win the Grand National. Seasonal flu can be a killer as well, so the free jab can keep your dreams alive too."

Government medical chiefs advise flu jabs for people aged 65 and over or those with heart or breathing problems or diabetes.

Police bid to cut store robberies

A POLICE campaign to cut robberies at convenience stores and post offices has been launched.

BY JOHN GOODE

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

Cambridgeshire, Suffolk and Bedfordshire police officers are involved in the campaign to combat the seasonal increase in crime.

The visits are part of Operation Arctic which has been run in previous years across East Anglia to prevent and detect robberies at Post Offices and stores, and ATM thefts.

Crime prevention advice is being given to around 500 shops in villages and towns across Suffolk with similar numbers in the other counties involved in the campaign.

Dave Gilson, Suffolk's senior crime reduction officer, said: "Now the clocks have gone back and the evenings get darker, criminals can take the opportunity to prey on stores.

"We want to give post office and shop managers information they can use to deter these people and keep themselves, their customers and their businesses safe. Simple things like locking staff doors and good outside lighting will help keep criminals at bay."

The packs also contain information on the Raid-control™ scheme which involves measures to improve security including the use of CCTV and indelible staining and note-marking equipment.

Police have promised to increase "high visibility" patrols in vulnerable areas.

He said: "It is likely that a criminal will visit the shop they want to target in the hours, days or weeks leading up to the offence.

"This could simply be driving past or sitting in vehicles outside.

"If the community acts as an extra set of eyes and ears, information passed to us could stop these visits before they become a serious incident."

Remembrance Day parade and service

THE annual Remembrance Day parade in Newmarket will be held at 2pm on Sunday.

The ceremony will start with a short march from The Severals green to the town's war memorial nearby.

After wreath laying ceremonies involving ex-service and community organisations, the parade will march along the High Street to Tattersalls racehorse sales ring where a service of remembrance will be held from 2.45pm.

Tickets on sale for Just Desserts

TICKETS are still available for a charity show by an amateur dramatic group.

The Riverside Theatre Company, based in Mildenhall, has played to packed houses for the past two years when it has staged shows to benefit local charities.

But this year tickets have been slow to sell for the two-act comedy, Just Desserts, which will be staged on November 12, 13 and 14 at Mildenhall's Jubilee Centre.

Tickets, price £8 each, are available from the St Nicholas Hospice shop and the Sue Ryder charity shop in the town.

Man cleared by court after assault near club

A MAN has been cleared of causing grievous bodily harm by breaking another man's jaw in violence outside a night club.

Joshua Parry, 21, of Station Road, Kennett, was acquitted after a trial at Ipswich Crown Court.

The court heard that the victim, stable lad Ryan McFarlane, 25, needed surgery to insert wire and metal plates in his jaw which was broken in two places.

Prosecutor Ramiz Gursoy, said the incident happened on the evening of April 11 this year after door staff at De Niro's in Newmarket told Parry, together with his ex-girlfriend and Mr McFarlane, to leave the premises.

In a car park near the club Parry grabbed the young woman's wrists and Mr McFarlane intervened, the court was told.

The hearing also heard that Parry punched him three times in the face breaking his jaw.

Parry told the court he acted in self-defence after he felt threatened by Mr McFarlane.

A LEADING veterinary charity at Kentford had a right royal day following a visit from the Queen.

She was given a tour of the Animal Health Trust to mark 50 years as the charity's patron after arriving at the site by helicopter.

During her visit, Her Majesty met staff, supporters and a number of local dignitaries including Forest Heath Council chief executive David Burnip and Suffolk County Council chairman Cllr Joanna Spicer before getting a sneak preview of the charity's revamped visitors centre.

The facility, which is set to be unveiled by the Princess Royal on Tuesday, includes a lecture theatre and Kennel Club interactive exhibition.

Wearing a long red coat and matching hat, the Queen was given a presentation of the trust's plans to expand its small animal centre by building a state-of-the-art cancer centre to enable experts to treat more horses, dogs and cats suffering from the disease.

The new centre will be able to offer all three treatment options for cancer – surgery, chemotherapy and radiotherapy – on one site.

The Queen also talked to members of the research team for a report on their development of new diagnostic tests and vaccines to combat strangles, a potentially fatal disease affecting horses, as well as several geneticists about the charity's genetic work on Fell ponies and Suffolk Punch horses.

Dr Carl Robinson, senior scientist leading the strangles project, said: "She was very interested in our work, was very on the ball and asked a lot of questions."

Colourful flower arrangements were prepared by Lode florist Clare Jane in red, white and blue themed arrangements using locally-sourced flowers and foliage.

Before leaving, the royal visitor planted a crab apple tree in memory of the AHT's founder Reg Wooldridge and received flowers from several observers, including four and a half-year-old twins Alexandra and Xenia Marshall and their brother Nicholas, the children of a charity employee.

Dr Peter Webbon, the charity's chief executive, said: "We hope Her Majesty was impressed with the progress we have made in the 50 years since she became our patron.

"It was great to obviously have the opportunity to update her on several of our areas of work which are so obviously of great interest to her."

He added: "It was fantastic to be able to update The Queen with our plans for the cancer centre. To build and fully equip the centre we need to raise £4.5 million. Knowing that the Queen is supportive of our plans should hopefully help us reach this target."

£2m is needed for racing fund

AROUND £2 million is needed to get a long-awaited project under way to create a major tourist attraction.

The Home of Horseracing project at Newmarket has been under discussion for more than 10 years and currently has £4 million funding secured towards the £6 million needed to get it off the ground.

Town councillors in Newmarket were given a progress briefing by Cllr Robin Millar, who chairs Forest Heath District Council's home of horseracing working group.

He said that Suffolk County Council's agreement in September to give £1 million toward the scheme brought

BY JOHN GOODE

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

the total gathered so far to £4 million.

Cllr Millar said the county council had also agreed to support some of the on-going costs of running the attraction, based on the town's historic Palace House stables, owned by the council.

The total cost of the work required was given earlier this year as nearly £11 million.

The scheme includes proposals to rehouse the National Horseracing Museum, currently in the High Street, and restore some of the stables so that they can be used by retired racehorses.

There is also a plan to move a collection of rare paintings into Palace House mansion on the opposite side of Palace Street. Major modifications are needed to the historic building to upgrade security and maintain the right temperature and humidity to preserve the paintings, currently in storage in London's Tate Gallery.

The district council had previously said it hoped that the work would have started in April of this year.

Cllr Millar told the town council he expected a formal application for planning permission for the work on the stables to be submitted this month.

Blackmail charge over threat to horse

A MAN has been charged with blackmail over threats to harm a horse trained by Newmarket-based Sir Michael Stoute before a prestigious race at Ascot.

Andrew Rodgerson is said to have sent text messages and emails to connections of the colt Conduit, threatening to kill him unless he was withdrawn from July's King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Stakes.

Rogerson, 26, of Rochdale, is due to appear in Bolton Crown Court on December 1.

The horse won its race but Peter Reynolds, manager of Ballymacoll Stud which owns Conduit, is said to have received the demands in the days prior to the race.

Sir Michael discussed the issue with the British Horseracing Authority in order to get stronger security for his horse for his visit to the Berkshire course.

A spokesman for Greater Manchester police said: "This charge relates to an incident in which a racehorse owner received threats before a race at the end of July."

Scooter returned

A MOBILITY scooter has been returned to its owner after it was stolen.

The £7,200 black Geo Sport scooter, stolen from an outbuilding in Old Station Road, Newmarket, has been found in the town.

The incident follows a previous one in which a different scooter was found in the High Street about a week earlier before it had been reported stolen. It was also returned to its owner by police.

Suffolk police have warned owners of mobility scooters to keep them secure and remove the keys when they are parked. Anyone with information about the incidents should call Sgt Mark Shipton on (01284) 774100.

Honour for racing veteran

HORSE racing veteran Cliff Lines was honoured for 60 years in the industry.

The former jockey was associated with ill-fated racehorse Shergar which he rode at exercise while the horse was in training at Sir Michael Stoute's stables in Newmarket.

He presented the awards for the Cliff Lines 60 Years in Racing Maiden Stakes at the town's Rowley Mile Racecourse.

His wife, Sue, said: "He rides out on a hack every morning and he is still beavering away.

"Everybody has been absolutely fantastic. Sir Michael even delayed his departure for the Breeders' Cup in America so he could be there to make the presentation."

Saturday's meeting was the last day of racing at Newmarket this year with Hallowe'en fun and a two-for-one admission deal for adults who turned up with a child in fancy dress.

Diamond cuts it as top seller

RACEHORSE sales chiefs have claimed the latest auction at Newmarket showed further encouraging signs for the industry with more than 900 horses going for more than £18.3 million.

But the totals were down on the same Tattersalls Autumn Horses in Training Sale last year when 935 horses sold for £20.6 million. The average price last year was £22,111 compared to £20,2999 this year.

Top price paid in the four-day sale was 400,000 guineas for Royal Diamond, one of a number sold from Sir Mark Prescott's stables in the town.

Edmond Mahony, Tattersalls chairman, said: "The sale was perhaps a touch short of obvious stars and, considering the strength of the market, the handful of high profile withdrawals was a little disappointing, but overall this has been another week which has provided encouragement for the industry."

Buyers and sellers from all over the world took part in the sale.

'Secrecy' row leads to halt at meeting

The meeting of Forest Heath District Council's local development framework working group was abandoned after a challenge about its legality by Cllr Ian Radford, leader of the council's opposition Liberal Democrats.

He argued that discussion about proposed sites for future development should be held in public and said the meeting had not been arranged in accordance with the council's own rules.

As a result the meeting last Thursday was abandoned.

BY JOHN GOODE

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

It is the latest move in the continuing row over "secret" discussions about potential development sites to be included in the council's planning framework for the period up to 2031.

Cllr Radford said: "I haven't seen a valid reason why these discussions should be held in private.

"The head of planning has said it's so these matters can be dealt with sensitively. But I think it's a poor state of affairs if we can't manage to deal with things sensitively and still discuss them in public."

He said he was seeking further advice to challenge any decision to hold discussions in private.

Cllr Robin Millar, the Conservative chairman of the working group, said it was later discovered that the meeting could have gone ahead – despite Cllr Radford's challenge.

He argued that the meetings were not "secret" as their content was made public beforehand and the decisions would be the subject of further public consultation and discussion.

But he said that holding the meetings in "exempt" session – without the media or public present – would allow councillors to discuss the issues without feeling pressured – either by developers or by those opposed to specific development sites.

"I want the quality of the decisions to be as good as they can be," he said.

The abandoned meeting, at the council's headquarters in Mildenhall, was due to have considered "preferred options" for development in the Lakenheath, Elveden and Brandon areas.

The issue has now been switched to a meeting on Monday when councillors are due to consider sites in the Mildenhall area.

A meeting to consider the "site specific" plans for Newmarket and Exning will be held next Thursday.

Deputy leader is out of touch

Sir, I refer to the front page report "Car park hit by vehicle arsonists", and to the following comments made by Cllr Nigel Roman, deputy leader of Forest Heath District Council (Weekly News, October 22).
He said: "The local taxpayer will have to pay for what some idiots have done.
"I wonder if whoever is responsible for this realises that they, or their parents, will have to pay for the repairs through their council tax."
Isn't there a possibility that these people do not pay council tax and will accordingly be unaffected?
If that were the case, the councillor's comments would be incorrect.
Even if they do pay council tax, is it relevant to make that statement, when in fact all council tax payers will be paying for the damages?
In any event, I find the councillors remarks inflammatory and unhelpful, and generally out of touch with the people who he is supposed to be representing.

Our Memories photograph published last week has reminded one reader of an event in the 1970s.
Tom Whittingham later became headteacher at Wisbech St Mary's Primary School and then moved to the Bristol area in a similar capacity. A few years ago he was a schools inspector in the Bristol region.

Racing car park plans given go-ahead

A NEW car park is to be created for racehorse trainers and owners at Newmarket after they were criticised for parking on the pavement and churning up grass verges.

Jockey Club Estates has been given planning permission to create the new parking area on part of The Severals, in Bury Road where there are trotting rings for horses to "warm up" before taking to the gallops.

Newmarket town councillor Richard Fletcher took up the issue after complaints that racing bosses were causing an obstruction with their cars and forcing pedestrians to walk in the road.

As a result, Jockey Club Estates came up with a plan for a dedicated parking area with up to 12 spaces just off the road.

The area will remain grass, but with a plastic reinforcing mesh.

It will be fenced off and the gate will be locked after 1pm when most of the racehorses have returned to their stables.

Forest Heath District Council has granted planning permission.

Carry on dancing with tea

TEA dances will be held monthly by Newmarket Town Council after the success of previous occasional events.

The council has now decided to organise the dances on the second Friday of each month.

The next one will be on Friday, November 13, between 2pm and 4pm at the Memorial Hall in the High Street.

Tickets are £2 and include free tea or coffee and biscuits. They can be reserved by contacting the town council office in the hall on (01638) 667227.

Allotment holders call for MP's help

BY JOHN GOODE

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

AN MP has been asked to intervene in a continuing row over plans to build houses on part of an allotment site.

The row over proposals to build on the land in St John's Avenue, Newmarket, has gone on for more than five years when a previous scheme was dropped after local opposition.

Jim Paice, South East Cambridgeshire MP, has been asked to use his influence to resolve conflicting information given by council officials about the status of the land.

East Cambridgeshire District Council's planning committee is due to be recommended, at its meeting yesterday, to approve plans by Kings Forest Housing for 18 houses on the 1.5 acres of land – part of which is still being used by allotment holders.

The land includes an area which was "given up" by Newmarket Allotment Association when there was not the current demand for plots. At the time the land was owned by Forest Heath District Council which subsequently passed ownership to Kings Forest for a development of "social housing".

Gardeners unite: protesters at the St John's Avenue allotments, and inset, MP Jim Paice who has been asked to intervene.

But there is confusion over the 1,000 square metres of land which are still being used by allotment holders.

Kings Forest claims that it owns the land.

But the allotment association and Crockfords Park Residents Association say a change of use of allotment land needs government approval – which has not been given.

Garsham Robertson, who chairs the residents' association, said the allotment land issue should mean that the current plans should be rejected and he has asked Mr Paice to step in.

A report prepared for the East Cambridgeshire planning committee by planning officer Jacqueline Harding refers to continuing "land use issues relating to the allotments".

She said that the scheme could not be recommended for approval without an assurance from Kings Forest that either replacement allotments were being provided or evidence that there was no legal requirement to do so.

But she said that the scheme could go ahead if the issue could be resolved.

Search on for rescue helpers

They are regularly called out to help the police find vulnerable missing people.

As part of Make a Difference Day, which takes place today, the charity is appealing for people to volunteer to help with its growing programme of fundraising and awareness events.

A vulnerable missing person could be a child, an elderly person suffering from dementia or someone who is considering taking their own life.

CamSAR receives no government funding and is reliant on donations.

If you need more information or would like to volunteer, contact (01143) 600 999, email info@camsar.org or visit www.camsar.org

Workshop for health teams

NURSES and midwives from across the East of England were asked to help shape the future of their roles.

They were invited to take part in a workshop which will be used to contribute to the Prime Minister's Commission on the Future of Nursing and Midwifery.

More than 100 nurses, midwives, health visitors and other health care workers attended the event, hosted by NHS Cambridgeshire in Stansted.

The commission has been established to explore the future of nursing and midwifery, as well as looking at the role nurses can play in leading and managing health services.

Ruth May, chief nursing officers for NHS East of England, said: "Our regional workshop was an excellent way for nurses and midwives in the East of England to come together to consider recommendations and priorities for the commission.

"The outcomes of these discussions will be significant in contributing to the Prime Minister's Commission and will help to develop the future roles of nurses and midwives."

The commission will be presenting its report to Gordon Brown early next year.

Deadline for school places

PARENTS whose children will start secondary school next September are running out of time to apply for places.

The deadline for applications is midnight tomorrow – they can be made by post or online at www.cambridgeshire.gov.uk/admissions.

Forms can also be handed in at primary schools, which will then be delivered by Cambridgeshire County Council's couriers to avoid getting caught up in the postal strikes.

A council spokesman said: "Parents are advised to visit schools and attend open evenings and information sessions to help them identify their preferences.

"Last year in Cambridgeshire, 94 per cent of children were offered their first preference of school."

Parents of children in Cambridgeshire due to start primary school next September have until December 4 to submit their applications for places.

For more information or to request an application form, contact the council's admissions team on (01223) 699200 or 699662.

Boxer dedicates fight to Liam

BOXER Pat McAleese has dedicated a charity bout to the memory of young cancer fund-raiser Liam Fairhurst who died in the summer.

Liam, who lived in Soham, raised thousands of pounds before he died aged 14.

Newmarket boxer Pat McAleese will be raising money for children's cancer charity CLIC Sargent when he takes on Welsh opponent Brock Cato in a one-off fight in Newmarket's Tattersalls racehorse sales ring on Saturday.

McAleese said: "It's a privilege to be able to fight in front of my home fans and an even bigger privilege to be able to fight to raise money for Liam's favourite charity CLIC Sargent.

"Even though I didn't personally know Liam, his heart, courage and desire to never give up is something that as a fighter myself I know you're only born with and very few people have – I respect that more than anything. He had the heart of a lion."

Annie Thomas, local event fund raising manager for CLIC Sargent, said: "There has been such a tremendous response to the match so far, and we now urgently need prizes for the charity auction and raffle. We're calling for local supporters to donate some top-quality items to help make the night a sporting and fundraising success."

Anyone wanting to donate to the charity auction and raffle can contact her on (01284) 829090 or email annie.thomas@clicsargent.org.uk

Shared school trust scheme to move ahead

A NEW school trust is set to move forward after government approval was given for the idea to move to the next stage.

BY JOHN GOODE
Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

A shared trust led by Newmarket College plus Scaltback Middle School and three primary schools – Laureate and Paddock in Newmarket and Exning village school – was among those given the go ahead by Ed Balls, the Schools Secretary, to join the trust schools programme.

The trust, which could be set up by next September, would allow the schools greater independence, although they would remain part of the Suffolk County Council education system.

They are among 114 schools across the country which have been given approval to move forward with trust proposals.

Mr Balls said: "Trust schools are becoming increasingly popular as they are demonstrating how they can help to raise standards and offer new opportunities to pupils and staff."

He said that in many instances trusts were forming links with major businesses including Marks and Spencer, British Airways, Sainsbury's and the Co-operative Group.

Elizabeth Reid, chief executive of the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust, said: "We welcome the growth of the trust and foundation schools programme which, with more than 240 trust schools already working with over 400 partners, is helping to raise standards of education for young people.

"Through these flexible and effective partnerships schools can harness the skills, knowledge and enthusiasm of other schools, businesses and higher education institutes.

"We look forward to working with the latest round of schools accepted onto the programme and their partners to support them becoming trust schools, and continuing to make a real difference to the lives of the young people they serve."

Trust schools are supported by a charitable foundation and employ their own staff, set their own admission arrangements and manage their own land and buildings.

The schools may receive funding of up to £10,000 from the Trust and Foundation Schools Partnership, which is contracted by the Department for Children, Schools and Families, to help cover the costs of achieving trust status.

Carbon scheme to help cut bills

A NEW scheme to save energy and carbon emissions is being supported by 46 councils across East Anglia.

The Eastern Carbon Reduction Initiative (CRI) has been launched with the Carbon Action Network East to help reduce hearing bills by having approved contractors carry out insulation work at a fixed price.

Cllr Tony Simmons, Forest Heath's member champion for the environment, said: "Householders currently have the ability to access a wide range of grants from a variety of sources but accessing and understanding them can be confusing.

"For the first time this new scheme will provide our residents a simple and cost-effective way to get their homes insulated. The scheme has a set price, no matter where you live in the region, so now householders only have to make a single phone call or visit to the E-CRI website."

Jockey arrested in scam probe

BY CHRIS HAVERGAL

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

TOP Newmarket jockey Darryll Holland has been arrested in connection with alleged passing of counterfeit cash in Cyprus.

The 37-year-old's detention in the Kyrenia area, in the north of the island, meant he missed his four rides in Newmarket on Saturday.

Holland had been with a friend last week when they were both arrested on suspicion of trying to pass $500 in fake US dollar notes.

But Peter Merchant, Holland's manager and father-in-law, insisted there was "not a problem at all".

He told the At The Races website at the weekend: "It appears the guy was in a shop buying mobiles or whatever it was and paid for it with this money and Darryll was just stood there as it were.

"Obviously they swiped the money and found out it was fraud, called the police and they were both arrested.

"They've taken them inside from there and they were both searched and this guy obviously had this money on him but they found Darryll was clean. He didn't have anything on him."

Mr Merchant said he hoped the jockey, who lives in Newmarket with his wife Jacqueline, would be released today.

He said Holland maintained his innocence.

The Foreign Office confirmed Holland and his friend, John Tabor, were arrested on October 27.

If convicted, the pair could face jail. A spokeswoman for the Foreign Office said: "We are providing consular assistance and next of kin have been informed."

Holland had been due at Newmarket to ride Fanunalter in the 2.05pm, Bushman at 2.35pm, Dark Eyes at 3.10pm and Swift Chap in the 4.15pm.

Mr Merchant said Holland had planned to visit Spain during the week, where his agent David Harrison has a winter home.

However, he failed to get a last-minute flight and opted for Cyprus instead.

Holland has won 21 Group One races including the Queen Elizabeth II Stakes at Ascot and York's Juddmonte International.

Music, faith and alternative therapies are aids for Khalid

Positive: Khalid Memon, with mum Juveria, is determined to live life to the full.

Pictures: Warren Gunn 604178

PLAYING his keyboard, performing a self-composed rap about peace, love and freedom, Khalid Memon is lost in his music.

"We all have the right to be free," he raps, "to be the people we wanna be . . ."

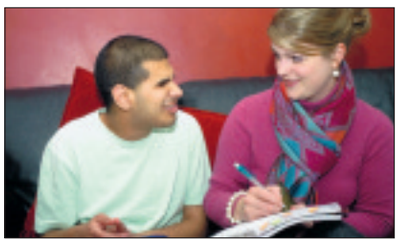
Like many 24-year-old guys, Khalid is seriously into his music: as well as playing the keyboard, he plays drums and has his own mixing deck. But that's where the similarities end – because Khalid is, in fact, very far from ordinary.

Exposed to a toxic chemical while still in the womb – a garden fungicide – he was born with no eyes.

Plagued by both dizziness and exhaustion, he is sick up to eight times a day. His spine is twisted and causes him constant pain. And, because his body produces no male hormone, he's never hit puberty.

Yet, warm, engaging and incredibly positive, Khalid refuses to give in to his disabilities. "The key thing is to never give up," he explains. "I believe that we should live every day as if it's our last."

Born with no eyes and suffering a whole raft of health problems, Khalid Memon finds peace in music. ALICE RYAN discovers how the 24-year-old has learned to live life to the full.



Khalid hit the headlines earlier this month after thieves stole his mixing deck (from the shed of his family home in Haslingfield). Thanks to the generosity of readers, he has now been able to replace his kit.

"Music means so much to me," he explains. "It calms me down; it gives me peace. If I've had a bad day or I'm feeling angry I can just sit down, play music and let it all go . . ."

A student at Ware College in Hertfordshire, Khalid is in the middle of a personal development course. Unable to live independently, he is learning basic life-skills; the freedom he sings about is, for the moment, still a dream for him.

"I can't even make a cup of tea for myself, in case I get burnt," explains Khalid. "That's hard sometimes. It's hard to have to depend on other people for everything. Sometimes I do get angry and I break things: I've broken CDs, a digital radio, glasses . . . But then I play my music and sing about something spiritual – I'm a Rastafarian, you see – and then I feel better about the world."

Juveria, Khalid's mum, says his disabilities became apparent the moment he was born. "His father said 'Why hasn't he opened his eyes?' and then they took him away," she remembers. "Then a nurse came in and said 'I'm sorry, I've got some bad news for you. I'm afraid your son's blind – he's got no eyes' . . .

"I can remember it so clearly. She was standing about 10 feet away from me and I said 'Can I have my baby?'. She just froze; she didn't know, I think, what I was about to do.

"I took him, put him in the bed next to me and he stayed there for the next seven days. He was my baby – a much-wanted baby – and I loved him."

At first, doctors suspected a genetic problem was to blame. But tests showed no abnormalities. "They couldn't explain it," continues Juveria. "So we were left to get on with the rest of our lives, basically."

Juveria says having a baby with special needs put an enormous strain on her marriage; in fact, she and her husband split before Khalid's first birthday.

Her son was, she continues, very slow to develop: he struggled to sit up, then to crawl, then to walk. But, after going to a special needs nursery, he went on to mainstream school.

"They gave him

Never giving up: Khalid finds peace in music. 600568

lessons with a little white cane, it was so cute," remembers Juveria. "And he was happy. Children at that age are just themselves, they don't think about being different."

When Khalid was seven, Juveria got a call from The Observer newspaper – completely out of the blue.

"They had discovered that animals were being born with no eyes after being exposed to a particular chemical, a fungicide," she explains, "and they wanted to know if I'd been exposed to it too, during my pregnancy. And I had: it was a garden fungicide which I'd used a few times. That was terrible, really terrible . . ."

A case was mounted against the pharmaceutical company. It never came to court, but Juveria says she hasn't given up on taking legal action and hopes to sue in the future.

In the wake of the revelation about the fungicide, Juveria became a founder member of the national charity MACS (The Micro and Anophthalmic Children's Society), which offers information and support to both families and health professionals dealing with disabilities like Khalid's. "I'd felt like we were the only ones," adds Juveria. "MACS made me feel so much less alone."

Then, when Khalid turned 11 and moved on to secondary school, his health suddenly began to deteriorate. "He started to feel sick all the time, his body began to twist and he was getting weaker and weaker," says Juveria, who has two younger children too, now 16 and 15.

Signed off by his paediatrician, who declared "nothing wrong", Khalid's condition spiralled: "I was so low on energy I was in bed all the time," he says. "I didn't feel like I wanted to carry on with life. I felt so sick and so dizzy and I was in a lot of pain."

Juveria took Khalid to the GP but, like the paediatrician, the doctor refused to accept there was anything wrong – even though the teenager's weight had plummeted to little over 5st.

"The GP sent me to a psychologist," exclaims Juveria. "I was told there was nothing wrong with him, there was something wrong with me. I was fuming! I wrote a very angry letter . . . Ever since Khalid was born, everything has been a battle."

In the end, Khalid had to be withdrawn from school: as well as his declining health, he was suffering at the hands of a group of bullies. They crowded him in the corridor, pushed into him and even ran off with his cane.

At its worst, Khalid's condition rendered him house-bound for a year. But it wasn't until he had a medical, part of the admissions process at a new school, that a doctor realised that Juveria had been right all along: aside from being born with no eyes, Khalid had a whole raft of other health problems.

"Khalid was 16 and the doctor said 'This boy hasn't started puberty'," remembers Juveria. "I was horrified."

A subsequent CT scan showed a series of lesions in Khalid's brain – revealing an incredibly rare congenital condition, known as septo-optic dysplasia.

As well as causing damage to the development of his eyes, the lesions had affected all kinds of other basic bodily functions, like the production of male hormone testosterone.

Because Khalid's condition went undiagnosed for so long, Juveria says his body and mind have both suffered lasting damage. The lack of hormone meant his bones failed to develop properly; his spine is now permanently deformed.

Although he now takes a synthetic hormone, he will never go through puberty. And he still wakes every day feeling sick and dizzy.

In 2002, Khalid hit rock-bottom and suffered a complete collapse. Then, in his early 20s, he wanted to live on his own: leaving home for a while, he moved into sheltered accommodation in Peterborough – but there wasn't sufficient support for his complex needs and he just couldn't cope.

Juveria recently formed another support group: this time based in Cambridge, it's called Disability Action and will focus on campaigning for services.

"Having someone in your family with special needs is hard enough, without having to do battle with service providers for your rights," she explains. "It's unacceptable and, as a group, we will be campaigning for change."

While his mum is committed to charitable work, Khalid says he focuses on his music, his faith and alternative therapies to help him through.

Drawn to Jamaican culture, he became a Rastafarian some time ago and says he shares the core beliefs of the religion – in peace, love and freedom.

"I like rowing and fishing and fresh air, especially going out in the rain," he says, with a grin. "And I like meeting people: I can tell just from someone's voice if they're warm-hearted or not.

"Like I said, you have to live every day of your life as if it's your last. And you should never give up."

Swap till you drop is a swishing way to dress

BARCLAYS money skills

Wardrobe full of unworn items? Simply have nothing to wear – but can't afford to splash out on a new outfit? We may have the answer. As part of our Barclays Money Skills campaign to help readers make the most of their finances, STEPHEN EXLEY has been finding out about the new craze of "swishing".

NEVER mind getting money for old rope – the latest craze to hit Cambridge involves getting rid of unwanted clothes and getting a stylish new wardrobe in return.

Swishing, or clothing exchange, involves participants giving up unwanted or unused clothes, shoes or accessories, and in return picking up someone else's cast-offs free of charge.

The practice was founded in 2000 when Lucy Shea, founder of green PR firm Futerra, and her work colleagues wanted to come up with a way to combine a love of retail shopping without contributing to increased consumption.

Monetary value does not come into the equation, with no cash changing hands and participants not being expected to have to take home something worth a similar price to the items they brought.

The practice is simply about getting rid of unwanted items without sending them to landfill, according to Andrew Martin of the Cambridge Design Collective (CDA). The CDA's first swishing event in Cambridge took place at 18 Jesus Lane, and proved to be roaring success with bargain-hungry fashionistas.

He said: "It went really well. We had planned for the event to run from noon-4pm, but it only lasted until 2pm in the end as we hardly had anything left." The high-quality clothes on offer were brought to the event for all sorts of different reasons, he explained. "A lot of people find they want to get rid of impulse buys, some of which are unworn and still have their tags on – or are now too small or too big for them to wear," he says. "The swishing, or clothes swapping, phenomenon started to come to the forefront of public awareness last year.

"It's a way of taking unwanted clothes and original garments and swapping them for something that someone else doesn't want, and that you do. First and foremost, it's a great way of stopping clothes ending up in landfill.

"We also like to use the events to promote local shopping and designers, and we had a workshop for revamping and restyling things." According to the swishing.org website: "Swishing is shopping without the hangovers. We all bring nice, clean, presentable clothes that are lurking unloved in our wardrobe, and other girls fall in love with them and give them a good home.

"You might bring one sweater and take two pairs of shoes, or hang a party frock on the 'swishing rail' and take a pair of skinny jeans and feather boa." At the Cambridge event, stylists were on hand to try to persuade visitors to actually take their own clothes home with them, but using stylish additions and modifications to prevent them being consigned to the back of the wardrobe.

Mr Martin said: "Instead of getting rid of old clothes, you can turn them into something you'd actually wear. You can add trims, combine them with other garments, or change their shape."

The event also raised £155 for Cancer Research UK. CDA is a new organisation committed to cultivating the next generation of fashion professionals in the city.

A spokesman said: "Cambridge Design Collective is a new, independent and vibrant fashion-focused collective of designers, models, photographers, illustrators, hair and make-up stylists, filmmakers, visual artists, fashion writers, journalists, independent retailers and those with an interest in these areas.

"Our aim is to engage and support local students and emerging practitioners alongside established, independent retailers and designers. We wish to highlight the breadth of talent in Cambridge and the surrounding area by promoting a collective of members."

Man faces charges on explosives

BY JOHN GOODE

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

A FORMER Euro election candidate has been charged with illegal possession of explosives and ammunition.

David Lucas, who stood for the British National Party at the Euro elections earlier this year, is due to appear before magistrates during November.

Police confirmed last Thursday that Mr Lucas, 49, of South Road, Lakenheath, had been charged with possession of explosives under suspicious circumstances – a charge under the Explosive Substances Act 1883 which can only be brought with the authorisation of the Attorney General.

He is also accused of having an explosive substance without a licence, having a prohibited weapon, having ammunition with intent to endanger life, having ammunition without a firearms certificate and two counts of possession of prohibited ammunition.

Mr Lucas, a parish councillor who runs a farm supplies business at Eriswell, was previously featured in national news bulletins after he claimed to have made gallows for use in executions in Third World Countries.

The charges relate to alleged discoveries of material by police who raided premises in the Lakenheath and Hockwold areas on April 23.

Lucas has been released on bail to appear before magistrates at Bury St Edmunds on Tuesday, November 10.

£6,000 motorbike stolen from shed

A MOTORCYCLE worth around £6,000 has been stolen from a shed.

Thieves forced a lock on the shed in North Road, Lakenheath, between 5pm Friday, October 23 and 1.30pm the following day.

They got away with the blue and white Suzuki GSXR 1000, registration DG07 XEK.

Anyone with information about the theft should call Suffolk police's Crime Investigation Bureau (01473) 613500 or Crimestoppers, anonymously, on 0800 555111.

Children help at appeal hearing

BY JOHN GOODE

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

CHILDREN who could be affected by a restriction on a childminder's operating times were among supporters at a hearing to consider her appeal against a council notice.

Marie Murphy brought her children Cian, two, and Tara, six, to the informal hearing by a planning inspector in support of childminder Shirley Mingay.

Forest Heath District Council served an enforcement notice on Mrs Mingay which would prevent her from taking children in before 7am at her bungalow in St Peter's Avenue, Moulton.

The council took action after complaints by neighbours about mums turning up from just after 5am to drop off children.

Mrs Murphy, 38, of Paget Place, Newmarket, said she would not be able to do her job as a "head lad" for Sheikh Mohammed's Godolphin Racing organisation if she could not take her children to Mrs Mingay early in the morning.

Hearing: childminder Shirley Mingay is appealing against an enforcement notice over early hours. 558431

She told the planning inspector who will decide the appeal: "We are one of the earliest to arrive. I drop the children off at 5.45am and we couldn't be quieter.

"If it wasn't for Shirley I wouldn't be able to work."

Mrs Mingay told the hearing, at the council's headquarters, that three mums dropped their children off before 6.30am out of a total of 10 children cared for by her and her assistant.

She said that they would have to collect the children from the parents' homes if she was not able to operate before 7am.

She said it would mean that they would have to leave her home at around 5.30am to do so.

Colin Goater, one of the neighbours who complained, said: "I don't want to stop her child minding. But I just want it to be sited elsewhere.

"We're objecting to engines and car doors early in the morning. Our bedroom is at the front of the house and we get the full effect of the nuisance and disturbance."

Cain Ormondroyd, representing Mrs Mingay, submitted a petition signed by supporters for the inspector to consider along with letters from neighbours and arguments by the council.

The inspector will publish his decision at a later date.

Musicians' classical tribute to university's celebrations

BY CHRIS ELLIOTT

CAMBRIDGE Music Festival, the city's biggest and most diverse musical extravaganza, is about to burst into life.

The world-renowned festival will feature more than 50 concerts – and some will take place in unusual venues, such as museums, shopping centres and even park and ride bus stops.

The theme, tying in with the 200th anniversary of the birth of Charles Darwin, is Music and Evolution.

And many events will also be in tribute to Cambridge University, which is 800 years old this year.

A spokeswoman for the festival, which is held every three years, said: "The span of events neatly couples the anniversaries not only of Darwin but Haydn, whose oratorio, The Creation, will be performed in King's College Chapel.

"Music to celebrate the wonders of the natural world has an important place in the programme, with family concerts in the Museum of Zoology, a study of the creative patterns of DNA and music, and a feast of South American music and dance, which mirrors the discoveries of HMS Beagle.

"Performances involving Cambridge University musicians are also at the heart of the festival, as well as special events in some of the university's amazing buildings. One of these is a special public event in the Senate House on November 24, the day of the 150th anniversary of the publication of Darwin's ground-breaking work, On the Origin of Species.

"Held in partnership with the 2009 Darwin Festival, there will be a concert there featuring a specially-commissioned quartet by John Ramsay – a distinguished geologist as well as a composer – performed by the Fitzwilliam Quartet and built on a programme of Darwin's own work as a geologist and evolutionist."

The festival begins on Sunday with a series of family events in The Grafton shopping centre.

It continues until November 29, with a finale featuring the Aronowitz Ensemble at Cambridge's West Road concert hall.

Gillian Perkins, who founded the festival and has been its director for the past 20 years, is bowing out at the end of the festival this time.

She said: "In each and every festival, young student musicians give us a foretaste of their future careers. Their inspirational enthusiasm can be infectious, and it has certainly kept me going during the ups and downs of management."

A full programme of events is available on the festival website, www.cammusic.co.uk

In tune: the Aronowitz Ensemble, above, and the Fitzwilliam Quartet, right, will be among the groups performing at this year's Cambridge Music Festival. CP

Other highlights

- A choral celebration of the University at 800, which includes Christopher Brown's setting of A Five-Gated Well, a collection of specially-written poetry by Archbishop Rowan Williams performed by Clare and Trinity Choirs and Cambridge Collegium Musicum
- The Far Theatricals of Day, a programme of choral music sung by the specially-formed University Festival Chorus in King's Chapel
- Performances of Haydn by King's and St John's Choirs
- Two performances of Britten's Noye's Fludde, with Cambridge University Opera Society and children from local schools
- A collaboration between poet Wendy Cope and the Endellion String Quartet
- Food for Thought, a moveable feast of free lunchtime concerts given by Instrumental Award Holders and choral scholars
- Later On, a sequence of late-night concerts, given by college choirs and ensembles, which take place in different college chapels throughout the festival

Cancer survivor's concert to launch Captain

ALISON Stephens, a leading exponent of the classical mandolin, will perform a concert with pianist Anne Evans at the Mumford Theatre, Cambridge, later this month.

The free lunchtime show, at 1.10pm on November 27 is part of the autumn programme from the department of music and performing arts at Anglia Ruskin University.

The concert will be a prelude to the opening of Mike Maran's stage production of Captain Corelli's Mandolin at the theatre on November 27 and 28.

Maran and Stephens, who was the first graduate of mandolin from Trinity College of Music, London, are both recovering from cancer and helping to raise funds to help others fight the disease.

The recital is in aid of their fundraising group, Captain Corelli's Cambridge Cancer Club, which has raised more than £20,000 for Addenbrooke's Charitable Trust, Macmillan Cancer and KIS Endowment Fund, an Edinburgh-based bowel cancer research project.

Funny four line up for night of laughs

THE Jesterlarf Comedy Club returns to The Junction in Cambridge tomorrow for its monthly instalment of mirth and merriment with three of the very best comedians from the UK's comedy club circuit.

Headlining the show will be Perrier Award nominee and Time Out Award winner Simon Bligh, with his trademark high octane comedy and manic story telling.

As a 15-year-old Liverpudlian schoolboy, Bligh was told by his headmaster that he would go to hell. His mum wanted him to be a priest. He wanted to be a plumber.

Growing up in Toxteth, his childhood was odd, but full of strange passions. He loved comedy and, after seeing a Richard Pryor film in an empty Manchester cinema, he realised his true calling. Following a decade of travelling, teaching and trying to pluck up the courage to ring for open spots he finally did it and hasn't looked back since.

Aside from being a top compere at the world famous Comedy Store, he regularly delights audiences nationwide at comedy clubs and corporate events.

His cheery, conversational manner involves acute observations and he juxtaposes a cheery, affable conversational style with a wild, frenetic and fast-moving performance engaging audiences in a whirlwind of unadulterated comedy.

Support comes from the brilliant Kerry Godliman, who recently appeared on the BBC's Michael McIntyre's Comedy Roadshow where audiences got to see a glimpse of this talented comedienne.

Actress and stand-up comedian, Godliman has been in numerous television and theatre productions while still managing to perform regularly on the UK comedy circuit.

In 2003 she made an impact in The Babycham Funny Women Stand-up competition, for which she received a special mention. She also won second place in The Hackney Empire New Act Final in 2004 and was later asked to be part of BLING BLUSH & BONK, with fellow stand-ups Ava Vidal and Roisin Conaty, at the Edinburgh Festival where she was described by Chortle as "the one to watch".

She is currently filming an all-new comedy sketch show for Channel 4.

Jimbo, from Oz, has just completed a five-year tour of the Australian outback, playing almost every town in the land. He's now plying his comedic trade in the UK and attempting the same feat.

Tickets, at £11, are available on (01223) 511 511 or online at www.junction.co.uk Doors open at 7.45pm for an 8.30pm start.

Laughs galore: with Simon Bligh and Kerry Godliman. CP

CO2 labels booked

Green scheme go-ahead

CAR buyers will be able to find out just how "green" and economical their used vehicle is under a colour-coded label scheme launched this week.

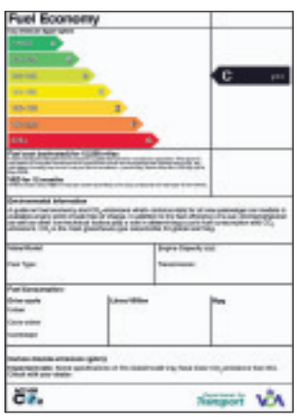
The plan will involve dealers being able to give vital vehicle running costs information to consumers about cars dating back to March 2001.

The labels provide easy-to-read information on a car's make and model along with its CO2 emissions, estimated fuel costs over 12,000 miles and miles per gallon.

Launching the scheme, which follows a similar label system for new cars, Transport Minister Sadiq Khan said: "Running costs and environmental performance are increasingly important to new and used car buyers. I am therefore delighted that the new car label is now joined by a similar used car label.

"This will give people the information they need to make the right purchase for themselves and the smart purchase for the environment.

"I hope as many dealers as possible will participate and I encourage used car buyers to look out for the label when they consider what to buy."



Helpful information: On 'green' label.

The scheme, which is voluntary, has been developed by the Low Carbon Vehicle Partnership (LowCVP) with support from the Retail Motor Industry Federation (RMI), the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders and the Government.

LowCVP managing director Greg Archer said: "As many as 94 per cent of dealers now display the new car label, while 71 per cent of car buyers say the label is important in informing their choice of car. The introduction of the used car label now extends this information to used car buyers."

The used car label has been warmly welcomed by both the AA and What Car? magazine.

AA president Edmund King said it would end a situation in which car buyers had been "kept in the dark regarding fuel efficiency".

SMMT chief executive Paul Everitt said the scheme would allow "even more buyers to make better comparisons and informed buying decisions".

RMI director Sue Robinson urged all used car dealers to sign up to the scheme.

'Affordable supercar' is on the way

THIS month's MPH Show will be the stage for the UK premiere of Peugeot's exciting new RCZ Coupé.

Visitors to this year's MPH The Prestige & Performance Motor Show will be among the first people in the UK to get access to Peugeot's stunning RCZ Coupé. Recently launched at the Frankfurt Motor Show in September, the car has not been seen before in the UK.

The white Peugeot RCZ Coupé will be one of the star attractions of the show and is the first of the next generation of Peugeot cars, the car to be seen in 2010.

The Peugeot RCZ Coupé: From £22,200, due in April.

Available with a 200bhp turbo charged petrol engine, it will do 0 to 62mph in 7.6 seconds and 50 to 75mph in fifth gear in 6.5 seconds. It will clearly become the affordable "supercar" when it is launched in April next year priced at £22,200.

Rolls-Royce Ghost most powerful yet

THE Rolls-Royce Ghost is being unveiled in UK showrooms this month.

The Ghost has a brand new 6.6-litre twin-turbo V12 engine and achieves 60mph in an astonishing 4.7 seconds, making it the most powerful car that Rolls-Royce has ever made.

Ghost's 6.6-litre twin-turbo V12 engine produces 563bhp – enough to propel the Ghost on to an electronically governed top speed of 155mph. Details from P & A Wood on (01371) 870848 or email enquiries@pawood.co.uk.

The Rolls-Royce Ghost: Astonishing performance.

Be sure to be vigilant in the twilight months of winter

Stay visible: November is a particularly dangerous month.

NOVEMBER marks the switch from autumn to winter in Britain – and brings with it the need for extra driver vigilance.

It's the month that catches motorists out most when it comes to accidents and fatalities, as we all adjust to the clocks moving back one hour.

Recently-released national road safety figures bear this out, and it is young children who are most at risk in the darkening evenings as they walk home from school or indulge in a spot of pre-teatime play.

The Road Casualties Great Britain tally for last year shows that more than twice the number of child pedestrians were killed on the nation's roads in November, compared with October and December.

At the same time, there was a 10 per cent increase in the overall number of pedestrian fatalities.

Shocking statistics indeed, and national organisation Road Safety GB has responded by supporting the Department for Transport's Be Bright, Be Seen campaign.

The campaign encourages children to wear bright, reflective clothing – but Road Safety GB is also calling for both drivers and adult pedestrians to be more aware at this time of year.

"Although the number of people being killed or injured on our roads is actually decreasing slightly, November is particularly dangerous for all road users – especially in the evening rush hour," says Road Safety GB chairman Alan Kennedy.

"Drivers need to be especially watchful, and ensure vital items such as headlights are working correctly."

Road Safety GB has launched a series of posters which show three pairs of children walking on a pavement alongside a road – in each case, one child is wearing high-visibility clothing, while the other is not. It doesn't take a genius to work out that a small investment in reflective clothing items could well prove a life-saver.

Anyone who needs more information on this initiative should visit website www.roadsafetygb.org.uk.

The Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents is also urging motorists to keep an even greater lookout for cyclists and pedestrians.

The Institute of Advanced Motorists, meanwhile, is warning Britain's drivers to cut their speed to reflect the seasonal poor light and bad weather.

"Optimum driving conditions are now ending, after an autumn with reasonably good weather. More hours of darkness require slower speeds – earlier darkness means children are still on their way home," says IAM chief examiner Peter Rodger.

"Late afternoon and early evening, the time when most casualties happen, is now in darkness."

Comma is giving away 150,000 high-visibility vests on five-litre packs of its performance motor oil.

Tough life: For the younger driver.

31 is average age for named second driver's insurance deal

THE average age of sons and daughters driving on their parents' insurance has rocketed, it was revealed this week.

In the last 12 months, the average age of a child named as a second driver on their parents' policy has gone up from 25 years to 31 years, a survey by price comparison site uSwitch.com shows.

Nearly 40 per cent of drivers now have a second named driver on their car insurance policy, the poll also showed.

Also highlighted by uSwitch.com was the fact that insurance fraud adds an average of £44 a year to every household's general insurance costs.

One habit that has increased since the recession started is "fronting", which involves a young person buying and registering a car in their own name, but telling insurers that the parent is the main driver.

Also, as many as 20 per cent of 17 to 20-year-olds drive without insurance.

Mark Monteiro of uSwitch.com said: "Not only are hard-up 'kidults' living at home for longer, but they are hanging around on their parents' insurance policies for longer too.

"It is no secret that younger drivers pay far higher premiums than older motorists because of the higher risk involved. But many are now getting around it by becoming a named driver on their parents' policy instead. The practice becomes illegal though when a younger motorist buys and registers a car in their own name, but the insurer is told falsely that a parent is the main driver."

Different point of view needed

OUR region is renowned for its number of forward thinking companies.

But even the best firms can run the risk of losing touch if they do the same thing day in day out and rely on the same team to come up with solutions.

One of the best ways to ensure there's always fresh thinking is to invite experienced people from outside the business to cast a critical eye over the company and ensure that plans and strategies are being followed.

These days, many firms are employing non-executive directors to fulfil that role.

A non-exec is someone who is completely independent of the company's existing management and, as such, is capable of seeing issues in a broad perspective.

They are usually chosen on the grounds of their breadth of experience, calibre and particular personal qualities.

They may also have particular specialist knowledge or useful contacts.

While they don't have a day to day role in the business, their legal responsibilities, duties and potential liabilities are the same as their executive colleagues.

As such, it should come as no surprise that The Cambridge Building Society, one of the city's most respected organisations, long ago embraced the idea of non-executive directors.

The society's chairman, Ian O'Reilly, describes the calibre of individuals they look for, the challenges they face and why the role of a non-exec is no pushover.

Ian says: "The Cambridge Building Society is similar to most businesses in that our aim is to grow sales, reduce costs, increase market share and give great customer service.

"Our current team of non-execs, all of whom have a wide range of skills and come from a wide range of business backgrounds, are critical in helping us meet those aims. Our new non-execs will be made from the same mould.

"Equally importantly, they must share the society's ethos of remaining mutual and independent and maintaining our strong links with the community, one of the key points of differential from our competitors.

"In return, the Cambridge Building Society can offer a fee of £18,000 per annum and the opportunity for excellent professional development. They will also learn skills which may benefit their main employer."

If you have relevant experience to offer, please contact Louise Bateman, Cambridge Building Society on (01223) 727727 or email lbateman@cambridgebs.co.uk to request an information pack.

JOIN THE TEAM: Ian O'Reilly, Cambridge Building Society chairman.

Junior Vase
PATRICK Tapley helped Newmarket fly out of the traps on their way to the third round of the Junior Vase with a 48-5 win at Clacton.
They led 43-0 after a blistering first half in which Tapley scored four tries, with Sherard Franklin adding two, Matt Kent one and skipper Michael Reeves kicking four conversions.
However, Richard Harper's try was the only one of the second period.
"You could say it was a Jekyll and Hyde performance," said Reeves.
"We wiped the floor with them in the first half, but we did not switch off – we just didn't do what we did in the first half.

Kettering v Newmarket
Under-Seven

NEWMARKET racked up two hard-earned wins in wet and difficult conditions.
Only good team tagging helped them secure a 2-1 win in the first game after Elijah Hall broke the deadlock before half time.
Although Kettering equalised, a fine solo try by Edward Newton put the away side back in front and they almost added a third through Owen Bentley.
Newmarket found their feet in the second game, winning 5-3 as the rain eased. Alexander Cowdrey gave them a flying start with a try from the kick off but Kettering equalised, as they did after Jacob O'Gorman scored the second try. But, in the second half, Cowdrey completed his hat-trick with tries either side of another try for Newton to give Newmarket victory

Kettering 90 Newmarket 105
Under-eight
A DEPLETED Newmarket showed great spirit in a thrilling game, Ben Le Maire leading the way with an amazing 10 tries.
Even after loaning three players to the visitors – they even scored tries against their own clubmates – Kettering gave as good as they got, keeping in touch throughout.
Evan Thomas-Mansfield scored an impressive four tries, while Harrison Jones scored a superb try in a break from the halfway line.
Freddie Nash and the debut-making Christopher Bailey also impressed.

Kettering v Newmarket
Under-10

HEAVY rain did little to dampen the quality of Newmarket's performance in their first away fixture at Kettering.
A tremendous all-round display, of both attacking and defensive rugby, ensured three well-deserved wins against the physically imposing hosts.
They opened with a 15-0 victory, Tom Addison powering through after good work by the forwards. Prop Alex Grillenzio scored after a dogged solo run but Kettering clawed their way back and went close to pegging Newmarket back, but several infringements close to the visitors' line led to a series of scrums and Addison, who touched down short of the line after an earlier break, added a third try when released by Charlie Jones and Josh Dadds.
In the second game, strong tackling from Harry Robbins, Doron Baldwin and Will Christie ensured that Kettering were always going to struggle to find a way through.
Prop Sam Nash and scrum-half Sam McNaughton secured a 10-0 victory with tries.
And, in the third game, further good passing in tricky conditions emphasised the quality in the Newmarket squad.
Prop Kieren Sutton made life difficult for Kettering and the tries came from Christie, a superb effort from Robbins and another score from Addison.

Newmarket 7 Woodbridge 15
Under-13
DESPITE having the potential to win, Newmarket failed to play to their strengths.
They did not win a line-out and were beaten at most scrums, but Woodbridge were unable to take advantage as the home side quickly shut them down.
But all good work by the forwards in rucks and mauls was negated by a back-line which was often static.
When they did move the ball, though, Woodbridge were stretched and Newmarket were able to lead 7-5 at half time. However, they were ultimately undone by a sucker-punch breakaway try in the second half.

Newmarket 7 Peterborough 5
Under-15
NEWMARKET returned to winning ways with a hard-fought victory in conditions that limited open flowing rugby.
Cam Brooks made the break which led to TJ Rowland scoring in the corner and Dale Gibson's difficult conversion from the touchline proved to be the decisive score as Peterborough managed an unconverted touchdown.

Town content despite wasting two-goal lead

Newmarket 2 Market Deeping 2
Cambs Women's League, Premier Division
DESPITE letting a 2-0 lead slip away, Newmarket were still satisfied with their all-round effort.
After absorbing a lot of pressure, they made the breakthrough when Di Thomas deflected Louise Downs' pass into the net.
Despite further flowing attacks, Newmarket were unable to increase their lead until early in the second half when Thomas was impeded as she pounced on a rebound, Downs coolly converting the penalty flick.
However, Deeping pulled a goal back from their first chance of the game, and although the visitors continued to create openings with the busy Tracy Cockerill ensuring plenty of possession, Newmarket were pegged back and had to settle for a point.

Felixstowe 9 Newmarket III 0
Suffolk League
NEWMARKET started strongly with some confident play between the defence and midfield.
But once Felixstowe broke the deadlock after 10 minutes the floodgates opened and they scored all their goals in the first half.
However, a positive team talk lifted the spirits and Newmarket re-emerged determined and created some chances for Lea Davenport and Laura Flemming.
Catherine Dampier made some good saves allowing player-of-the-match Lorna Freeman to keep Felixstowe on their toes.

Evans gets the top honour

MILDENHALL captain Barrie Evans was rewarded for his exploits over the season when he scooped the club's 'rider of the year' honour at their presentation evening on Saturday.
The 25-year-old Norfolk racer topped the team's averages with 9.16 and piled in a near 10-point figure at home.
His consistency over the course of the campaign and top-end scoring made him a deserved winner of the award.
His devastating early-season form, with 10 successive double-figure totals, saved the Fen Tigers from a number of defeats in the initial stages.
And, as expected, he reaffirmed his desire to return to West Row next year.
Also collecting awards were teenage aces Taylor Poole and Joe Jacobs.
Poole, 17 – due to return to Australia this week – stole the headlines during his six week spell at the tail-end of the season with show-stopping performances which rewarded the Aussie with the Cooke Shield award for the most impressive youngster.
Jacobs, 16, received the Brian Snowie Award, in memory of the former Youth Development Officer who died in 2006. The Ipswich youngster received the trophy from former Witches veteran Jeremy Doncaster, and he also indicated his hopes of returning.

Jarvis baffled

Driver loses a place after rivals protest

OLIVER Jarvis netted excellent fourth and fifth places on his sportscar debut at the wheel of his diesel-engined Audi in Japan last weekend.
The 25-year-old from Burwell qualified the Kolles Audi R10 TDI in sixth place on Friday and went on to claim third place, after briefly leading, in the first Asian Le Mans Series race at Okayama on Saturday.
But race officials later penalised Jarvis and co-driver Christian Bakkerud with a one-lap penalty, although Jarvis had not been informed officially of any change in the results as he prepared to leave Japan.
He said: "I got a message from a friend back home telling me that Saturday's results had been amended according to a something he'd seen on the internet.
"I still have my third place silverware. No-one had told me, or indeed anyone in the Kolles team, that the result had been changed, so I've no idea what's going on.
"The problem apparently surrounds a ruling concerning brake louvers on the front bodywork. We made repairs in our final stop but one of our rivals has protested that the repairs weren't sufficient."
Jarvis recalled: "I quickly moved up to fifth, shadowing my Kolles Audi team-mate Christijan Albers in the 'sister' R10 TDI during my first period in the race but jumped him during the first phase of pit-stops to move in to fourth," said Jarvis.
"I got in to a really good rhythm during my second stint and was able to set consistently quick lap times to close the gap to 10secs on the leading trio. Christian took over from me and resumed in fourth until moving up to third six minutes from the finish.
"He had to make an unscheduled pit-stop almost within sight of the chequered flag to repair a damaged nose section but we held on to net third place."
And that was when their problems started, with the race stewards being alerted by a rival team.
In the second three-hour race the following day Jarvis took over from Bakkerud when they were fourth but they dropped a place two laps from home as Jarvis struggled with understeer and front tyre degradation.

Oliver Jarvis: Dropped a place.

Cecil has Time on his side. . .

HENRY Cecil warmed up for the Breeders' Cup meeting at the weekend by winning the Casino At bet365.com EBF Montrose Fillies' Stakes at Newmarket on Saturday with the promising Timepiece.
A half-sister to the hugely-talented Passage Of Time, who won the corresponding race three years ago, she took her tally to two wins from three starts.
She needed all of Eddie Ahern's urgings from the saddle to hold off Nurture by a nose, but the well-backed 4-1 chance still looked green.
Cecil is taking his biggest team to America next week – Father Time, another relative of Timepiece, Midday and Twice Over – and his string remains in cracking form.
"She did very well to win as she's going over the top and didn't like the ground. I promise that you haven't seen the best of her," said Cecil.

It's a Crime

CRIME Scene went close to causing a major upset in the Melbourne Cup on Tuesday.
The Godolphin outsider looked set to become the first horse trained in Britain to win Australia's biggest event, known as 'the race that stops a nation'.
But Shocking wore down the 40-1 shot inside the final furlong to beat the Newmarket raider by half a length. Mourilyan (20-1), owned by Chechen President Ramzan Kadyrov, was third while the other British raiders Munsef was 12th and Luca Cumani's Basaltico was 18th.
Crime Scene is the fifth horse trained in Britain to finish second in the contest. Last year Cumani's Bauer was pipped by a nose by Viewed.
However, what was heartbreak for Godolphin proved to be relief for Shocking's jockey, Corey Brown who had been runner-up in the race twice – Bauer and Mr Prudent (2002) – and third once.

Golden days

ROSS Edgar and Victoria Pendleton were among the medal winners as Great Britain proved their thirst for glory remains undiminished with a dominant display at the Track World Cup in Manchester.
The GB team continued their Olympic form with 10 gold medals, four silver and one bronze from 17 events.
Mildenhall life member Pendleton won gold in the sprint and silver in the time-trial, while Newmarket-based Edgar won the gold in the team sprint.

Wet 'n' wild but Huff manages third

» Motorsport

Lighting up the gloom: Rob Huff (second right) with the podium party after finishing third in the dreadful conditions in Okayama.

ROB Huff claimed his eighth podium of the season at a rain-soaked Okayama in the penultimate round of the World Touring Car Championships.

The Red Lodge-based driver came through some horrendous conditions in the first race to take a well-deserved third place, and followed it up in the second with sixth place.

The Chevrolet Cruze has proved adept in wet conditions, and 29-year-old Huff had been hoping for rain all weekend.

But he almost got more than he bargained for as track conditions were treacherous for the two races in Japan.

Having qualified in ninth, Huff faced a tough job to finish with a significant points haul, but he made a solid start and as his rivals aquaplaned and slid off the track, he kept his cool to guide the Cruze home in third behind race winner and fellow Brit Andy Priaulx and Jorg Muller, both driving for BMW.

"In the first few laps it was impossible to see anything," said Huff. "I was braking according to what I could see out of my passenger window.

"Going from ninth to third is great and I'm happy to be on the podium, even though I nearly threw it all away towards the end with a mistake."

Huff's slim hopes of overhauling Brazilian Augusto Farfus for third place in the overall drivers' championship came to an end as the BMW driver followed up his eighth place in the first race with a lights-to-flag victory in the second. And with Priaulx adding a second place to his earlier win, Huff will almost certainly finish no higher than his current position of fifth.

The second race saw more drivers run wide at the first corner as the wet conditions prevailed, but Huff and Chevrolet team-mates Alain Menu and Nicola Larini stayed the course. The trio finished in sequence, with Menu fourth, Larini fifth and Huff sixth.

SEAT's Gabriele Tarquini leads the overall championship, two points ahead of team mate Yvan Muller.

Huff will hope to end the season on a high at the final round of the championship in Macau on November 21

McAleese ready for the Cato test

PAT McAleese will take on Brock Cato at his homecoming show in Newmarket on Saturday night.

Welsh fighter Cato has won five of his six bouts at light-middleweight since joining the professional ranks last year, so he will provide a tough test for the unbeaten McAleese at Tattersalls.

Cato's record includes two knockout victories and, at 22, he is very much a contender in the same mould as McAleese.

Fellow Newmarket fighter Matt Jack comes up against Cato's countryman Jamie Ambler in the main support contest at super-middleweight as he goes in search of his first win.

All 700 tickets for the area's first professional show in nine years sold out within three days earlier this month, while 200 further tickets to watch the action on a big screen at the venue have also been snapped up.

Other bouts on the bill include Caine Brodie against Gary Boulden and Ian Bailey taking on Sid Razak, who lost to Bradley Evans on the Royston featherweight's professional debut in February.

■ Mark Samuel's hopes of success at under-44kg were ended in the first national round of the Junior Novice ABA Championships at Colchester.

The New Astley hitter suffered a narrow 19-17 defeat to Sean Burke from Southampton's Golden Ring ABC.

Despite the closeness of the result, coach Mark O'Reilly said he had no complaints.

He said: "Mark just didn't perform and it's a kid he should have beaten. He's not firing on all cylinders at the moment and it's something we'll have to have a look at."

'Sloppy' Jockeys slump in derby

Haverhill Rov 3
Newmarket Tn 2
Ridgeons League, Premier Division

POOR defending helped Haverhill claim a narrow win over Newmarket at Hamlet Croft on Friday.
James Lane put Town in front after 20 minutes but Rovers equalised five minutes later.
The scores remained level at half time but the hosts took the lead soon after the break.
Stuart Felgate conceded a penalty as Rovers went 3-1 ahead and although Kenny Holmes pulled one back for Newmarket, it was too little, too late for Kevin Grainger's men.
"We gave away three sloppy goals, which is very disappointing," said Grainger.
"We didn't play very well and it wasn't a great game.
"On the balance of play Haverhill probably deserved to win.
"We'll be all right, though. We've got Woodbridge on Saturday and we need to turn things around for then. We've got a lot of injuries, so I'm trying to bring players in but it's very difficult when you're on a budget."
■ Mildenhall Town suffered a disappointing 3-0 defeat at Dereham Town and will be looking to pick themselves up in the home game against King's Lynn reserves on Saturday.
